Todo Pad

What's New In Todo Pad?

Todo Pad is a simple notepad application for Windows which presents data in a tree view based on date. It is a bit difficult to explain in words. Start Todo Pad and you will be presented with a very simple interface in which you can create new notes and will be able to organize your notes in a tree view. Todo Pad is based on a database called ORCID, which is a kind of todo-list generator and which stores all information in a XML based format. There are some limitations as for how many notes and sections you can create and you can create notes only for days which begin with today. Note that you can use any language to create notes, it is not necessary to use the Notepad++ syntax. Todo Pad is fully configurable and you can create any custom layouts for your data, set different themes, colours and fonts, and of course you can make changes to your database if you have problems or wish to change the database schema. Todo Pad is distributed in source code. You can try out the precompiled versions of Todo Pad by following the link below: ## How to get Todo Pad First of all you have to download and install the precompiled version of Todo Pad.
